School is a place where imagination and learning can flourish when combined with a supportive and innovative environment. Trinity Academy in Caldwell offers just that for students from preschool through eighth grade. But what really distinguishes Trinity Academy are their three core fundamentals: academic excellence, a Christ-centered nurturing environment and development of the 'whole child.'

Trinity Academy teaches beyond standardized testing. While students consistently score above average on Terra Nova standardized tests, Trinity Academy's rigorous academic program also places great emphasis on critical thinking, creativity, problem solving and writing. To provide leadership in maintaining these emphases, this past November the school hired Mary Cassels as their principal, who previously worked in the Archdiocese of Newark for almost 40 years and the past 20 years as principal for Our Lady of Lourdes of West Orange and St. Cassian's in Upper Montclair. When asked about the schools academics Mrs. Cassels notes, "The curriculum is rigorous and challenging but the students are up for it. Their quality work is evident every day and their enthusiasm for learning is contagious."

The academy also has a supportive and well educated staff dedicated to developing the students. With a 1 to 10 teacher student ratio, teachers are able to teach on a personal level which clearly benefits the students. Jamie DiGiovanni, who has a daughter at Trinity Academy said, "Not only do they challenge our kids academically every day, but they genuinely care for their well-being and go above and beyond. Our teachers come to our kid's soccer games to cheer them on; they work with their students to make get-well cards for sick classmates."

In addition to maintaining academic rigor, Trinity Academy also seeks to maintain the technological advances that benefit the classroom. Caldwell College and the Academy recently announced a collaboration that will allow their technology program to put the faculty and students on the forefront of linking technology with academic instruction. With the assistance and support of the col-

Trinity Academy is an excellent choice for a well-rounded Catholic education for preschool through eighth grade. Under the guidance of new principal Mary Cassels, the school will continue to work with the archdiocese in improving areas such as math, science and the language arts in order to best prepare students for the future. lege students, Trinity students will be able to improve communication skills and discover new ways to access useful information through opportunities that address individualized learning styles. To help keep faculty ahead of technological advances, the teachers have initiated the "Appy Hour" enabling them to stay current on all the iPad educational apps useful for class.

As a Catholic school, Trinity Academy is a family community where students are encouraged to be themselves and live the Gospel. Students, from the smallest pre-k to the oldest eighth grader, are nurtured, cared for and given individualized attention by their teachers, and importantly, students are respectful and kind to each other. With the cooperation of the parents, teachers and parishes, an ideal environment is created for each student by allowing them to grow academically, as well as spiritually.

Valuing the development of the "whole child", Trinity desires to see its graduates having grown not only academically during their time at Trinity but also spiritually, emotionally, physically, artistically and socially. Trinity Academy participates in organized leagues for soccer, basketball, softball and baseball for students in grades 1-8, and offers sports clinics for pre-k and kindergarten students. In addition, clubs and enrichment programs are offered in areas such as drama, literary magazine, choir, mandarin, and fencing to name a few. The Academy is dedicated to their athletic development with their athletic coordinator on staff and looks forward to another successful season.
